ArcSoft WebCam Companion is an application designed for use with different models of cameras, many of which come shipped with the system. The application can be considered as bloatware by some, as many manufacturers of laptops include it with laptops and netbook computers. With that said, it has its uses, especially when using conferencing software like Skype. With ArcSoft WebCam Companion, you can perform different types of manipulations to your webcam feed including adding different masks, frames and cartoon-ish fun. Apart from the weird and wonderful different effects ArcSoft WebCam Companion can add to a video feed, you can also use the application to monitor a space and record in the event of motion. Or you can simply record action with your web cam. It can also perform adjustments to images such as brightness, contrast and color, along with automatic enhancements. Other tools include flipping and resizing videos. All in all, ArcSoft WebCam Companion has its uses and though some features may seem childish, it provides a number of features included with the maker of the PC the web camera is installed on. Features and highlights Direct upload to YouTube Effective monitoring functions Some modes have lots of customization options Flip and rotate web cam feed Can be used for video conferences and Skype ArcSoft WebCam Companion 4.0.444 on 32-bit and 64-bit PCs This download is licensed as shareware for the Windows operating system from webcam tools and can be used as a free trial until the trial period ends (after an unspecified number of days). The ArcSoft WebCam Companion 4.0.444 demo is available to all software users as a free download with potential restrictions and is not necessarily the full version of this software. Filed under: ArcSoft WebCam Companion Download Major release: ArcSoft WebCam Companion 4.0 Windows 11 Programs Softonic review ArcSoft WebCam Companion is a multifunctional program for your webcam. It carries out various functions, some of them practical, such as photo editing, others fun, like funky frames and masques, and others serious, such as its monitoring mode. The most basic feature of ArcSoft WebCam Companion is its capture mode, a function that allows you to take photo and video images with your webcam and save, email or print them. There is also an editing feature, but although it allows you to directly upload your videos to YouTube, its editing tools are nothing too amazing. In terms of fun, ArcSoft WebCam Companion lets you morph yourself with a range of photos and apply fun frames to your image screen, although this feature was not working properly during our test. The masque function, as the morphing is called, is silly but entertaining, and if you get bored of the pre-selected images, you can always make your own template from any JPEG image. The monitoring function is one that sets ArcSoft WebCam Companion apart from its competitors. Setting up the feature is easy, and our tests in the Softonic office showed that it works. ArcSoft WebCam Companion keeps an extensive log of all activity detected and can choose notify you by email or FTP if it detects anything to be worried about. A single monitoring session can last for 18 hours, detecting motion, faces or both. Although you can customize both individual modes and the program as a whole, I came away from ArcSoft WebCam Companion feeling that it didn't have quite as much flexibility and choice as that offered by its competitors. On the plus side, practical, fun and serious is a combination not offered by many and is something that has to stand in its favor. ArcSoft WebCam Companion offers a good choice of functions, but still left me feeling flat. ArcSoft WebCam Companion is a functional tool for your computer's webcam. The application can perform various standard functions, such as image capture, photo editing, frames and masque creation. It also has security functionality with a monitoring mode. The standard feature of ArcSoft WebCam Companion is the capture mode, this is a function that will allow you to take photo and video images with your webcam and save, email, and print those images. ArcSoft WebCam Companion also has an editing feature that allows you to directly upload your videos to YouTube. Worthy of note is the monitoring function. ArcSoft WebCam Companion keeps a full log of all activity detected and you can choose to be notified by email or FTP if it detects anything. You can customize a monitoring session to last up to 18 hours, and configure it to detect motion, faces or both. Overall, ArcSoft WebCam Companion is a good tool for playing with images and morphing them into works of art by adding frames and editing them to your liking, and the monitoring function is useful, but the application lacks some customization features in certain areas and yet has a full complement of others. On the plus side, you can upload to YouTube and the monitoring functions are effective.
